History

The Beck Center Women's Board was founded in 1936 under the umbrella of the Lakewood Little Theatre. From the beginning, the Women's Board was a working organization that was actively involved in the efforts of the theater.

In 1936, the purpose of the Women's Board was two-fold, to provide volunteer opportunities and to organize various fundraising activities to support the Lakewood Little Theatre.

In 1976 Lakewood Little Theatre became known as the Beck Center/Lakewood Little Theatre and in 1992 was renamed The Beck Center for the Cultural Arts.

From its inception, the Women's Board has worked diligently to continue that tradition of supporting and serving the theater community at Beck Center for the Arts.

Through the years the Women's Board has raised and contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars and provided thousands of volunteer hours to support performances, programs, and day-to-day operations at Beck Center.
